

An Unfinished Revolution?

Heinz von Foerster and the Biological Computer Laboratory, 1958–1976

Albert Müller & Karl Müller, eds. (Vienna, Edition Echorama, 2007)

The U of I Biological Computer Laboratory, under visionary director Heinz von Foerster, made Illinois the nerve center of the cybernetics world. This splendid new anthology brings it all back to life.

Reception & Book Signing
Illini Union Bookstore
4:30 pm, Wed., March 28

<http://bcl.ece.uiuc.edu>

Heinz von Foerster
1911–2002

"No one did more to create a revolutionary transdisciplinary research program involving biology, the cognitive neurosciences, cybernetics, and the social sciences." – J. Rogers Hollingsworth, University of Wisconsin

"The biological computer in the Biological Computer Laboratory was Heinz's brain." – poet Michael Holloway

Sponsored by the Department of Electrical and Computer Engineering

